Impact at the intersection of research, policy, capital, and security

We are pleased to partner with a series of organisations operating at the intersection of research, policy, and national security and a track record of working in sensitive or strategic contexts and dealing with complex public perceptions. Our board and advisers bring deep experience in delivering outcomes across systems where operational complexity, public accountability, and reputational sensitivity are closely intertwined.

Core Partners and Board

Partners

- An organisation deeply embedded in the provision of advisory and operational support to defence and intelligence communities, with a track record of operating within highly sensitive and classified environments.
- A global policy institute established by a former UK prime minister, with extensive experience supporting governments on reform, delivery, and the alignment of political ambition with implementation at scale.
- A global advisory firm with a track record of supporting governments and major institutions on strategy, transformation, and the implementation of complex system-wide change.
- A major philanthropic organisation operating at global scale, with significant influence in shaping health, development, and policy priorities through targeted funding and programme design.

Board

- A seasoned operation and former architect of modern UK government whose career spans Cabinet government, European trade leadership, and advising sovereign and corporate actors on navigating power, bringing unparalleled experience in aligning political strategy with global capital originating in complex geopolitical contexts.
- A long-standing critic of power and media whose academic work has shaped generations of thinking on language, politics, and consent systems, and whose later engagements have extended into complex global networks of influence.
- A psychologist, thought-leader, and sensemaker whose work has moved from academia into global cultural and political discourse, with a particular focus on meaning, order, and the structuring of contemporary public debate.
- Two very well-known figures whose careers encompass the building of major consumer and private equity institutions, alongside a period of direct involvement in the financial and advisory networks that have defined some of the most scrutinised relationships in recent economic history.

Academic Programme

Our academic programme will be second to none, a distributed higher education model in which delivery, recruitment, and accountability are decoupled from the awarding institution, and we guarantee your certification success.

Project Annatar (Partnerships)

Network resilience and reputational rehabilitation, leveraging collaboration with partners operating at the frontier of security, intelligence, and data integration, deeply experienced in high-threat operating environments.

Partners

- We are engaging security partners whose experience spans private security, and the delivery of stability in politically sensitive environment where the boundaries between state authority, commercial interest, and security provision are necessarily fluid, and with direct experience of implementing security and governance solutions in contested and high-risk contexts across parts of Africa, Eastern Europe, and Eurasia.
- A security and custodial service provider experienced in managing high-risk environments across detention, incarceration, and critical infrastructure contexts.
- A service provider delivering accommodation and operational support within migration and asylum systems, including experience managing distributed and high-demand service environments.

Advisers

- A historian of empire and global systems whose work spans academia, media, and advisory roles to political and financial institutions, bringing a long-standing interest in the relationship between power, capital, and historical narrative.
- A senior US policymaker and diplomat whose career – across multiple administrations – spans national security leadership, international diplomacy, and advisory roles at the intersection of government and private sector actors, bringing unparalleled experience in articulating and advancing foreign policy within complex and highly scrutinised international contexts

The Númenor Programme (State Reform)

Narrative alignment, philanthropic leverage, event-driven governance, marketisation, international capital-based repricing of state-level economic assumptions, and expansion of hybrid delivery across public services.

Partners

- A delivery partner with extensive experience in outsourced public services, including complex contracts across justice, migration, and citizen-facing systems, with a track record of operating at scale under close public and political scrutiny.
- Organisations with experience in the design and delivery of eligibility and assessment frameworks within welfare and health systems, operating at the interface between policy, administration, and individual outcomes.

Advisers

- A senior political operator with a track record of UK political realignment, with deep expertise in electoral strategy and message discipline, who understands how modern political movements are structured, managed, and, where necessary, simplified.
- A senior US economic policymaker whose career has repeatedly bridged elite academia, national economic leadership, and global finance, with deep experience in shaping and responding to major macroeconomic shifts.
- A development economist whose career has included advising governments and international organisations across multiple regions, with a focus on large-scale economic transition and global policy frameworks.

Eregion Lab (Technology and Systems)

Embedded AI-centric onchain systems of distributed accountability and centralised legibility, structuring and shaping how central government drives ‘system change’ at pace

Partners

- A data and analytics partner operating at the intersection of public services, national security, and large-scale population-level insight, with experience embedding decision-support systems within core state functions.
- A major public service integrator specialising in large-scale administrative systems, including the delivery of citizen assessment, payments, and data-intensive services across government.

Advisers

- A technology leader whose career has extended from building one of the world’s most influential digital platforms into advising on artificial intelligence, defence, and the evolving relationship between technology and state power.
- A figure at the forefront of artificial intelligence development, whose work spans research, venture investment, and the rapid scaling of globally significant technology platforms, who has promised to honour our not-for-profit status.
- A founder of a data and analytics company operating at the intersection of government, intelligence, and commercial systems, with experience deploying technology in complex security and operational environments.
